The School of Vocational Studies (SVS) at Dr. B. R. Ambedkar University Delhi successfully organized a specialized online seminar titled "Designing, Writing and Presenting a High-Quality Dissertation." The academic event, held on March 10, 2026, was specifically curated to equip postgraduate research students with essential skills for academic writing and professional research presentation.

The seminar featured Dr. Ashaq Hussain Najar, Senior Assistant Professor from the Central University of Kashmir, as the keynote resource person. Bringing a wealth of academic expertise, Dr. Najar led the participants through a comprehensive framework designed to demystify the dissertation process.

Coordinated by Faculty Co-ordinator Dr. Priya Singh, the two-hour session saw active participation from students of the M.Voc Tourism & Hospitality Management (Semesters 2 & 4). The event was conducted in a hybrid format, allowing students to gather at Room G3 of the Karampura Campus while simultaneously connecting virtually via Google Meet.

Throughout the seminar, Dr. Najar emphasized three core pillars of research excellence: mastering structural and methodological frameworks, adhering to high-level international academic writing standards, and building the necessary clarity and confidence to present and defend research findings effectively.

The event concluded with an interactive question-and-answer session, where students actively engaged with the speaker to resolve specific challenges encountered in their ongoing research journeys. This initiative underscores the School of Vocational Studies' ongoing commitment to fostering a robust research culture and enhancing the academic capabilities of its students.
