

My Letter to India

Dear India,

My name is Mridula, and I love you as you are our country, land, shelter and our life.

I love your tall mountains, blue seas and rivers, fertile soil, and the free sky. I also love the animals, birds, fish, and insects present on you. I love your everything.

I feel proud that how many different states you have and different people lives in it and we speak different languages but we all are Indians.

The Britishers have taken many precious things from you, but then also you are very precious for us.

I feel very proud when I sing the national anthem standing in the assembly of my school.

Sometimes I feel very sad that we are polluting your water, soil, and air and also killing the animals living on you and cutting the trees for land.

I promise you that I will not harvest the firecrackers and plant more and more trees and do not throw the garbage in the rivers.

Your small daughter
Weiduts Patches

To,
The People and Government of India,

Subject: Heartfelt Congratulations on India's 77th Republic Day.

Warm greetings,

From a fellow student and global citizen. As we in my Global Studies programme map the narratives of nations, your 77th Republic Day on January 26th stands out not just as a national celebration, but as a landmark moment for democratic ideals worldwide.

From my coursework on comparative politics and modern history, India's story is impossible to overlook. The act of crafting a constitution for one of the world's most ancient and diverse societies and building upon it the world's largest enduring democracy, is perhaps one of the most significant political projects of the 21st century. What my textbooks term "challenges of pluralism" - language, religion, region - are, in India's context, not just challenges but the very fabric of a dynamic society. Watching this democracy in action, with its scale and vibrant debate, is a constant case study for us. My recent studies on soft power and global governance have repeatedly highlighted India's unique role. The principle of Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam that you champion finds practical shape in your vaccine diplomacy during the pandemic, your leadership in the Global South's dialogue, and initiatives like the International Solar Alliance. It's fascinating to analyze how a nation balances its strategic interests with this deeply rooted civilizational ethos of universal kinship. As a student, I am also keenly aware of the critical debates and discussions that animate your public sphere - from digital transformation and Sustainability to social justice. This open, contested space is, in itself, a testament to the republican spirit you celebrate today. On this day, I remember the courage of your framers who imagined a free and equal republic. Their vision, now 77 years strong, continues to offer hope and perspectives to student like me, trying to understand how diverse nations can forge a shared future.

Page No. _____
Date ____/____/____

Wishing you a joyous Republic Day filled with pride and reflection. May your journey continue to inspire those of us studying the complex, beautiful mosaic of our world.

With respect and academic solidarity,

Snigdha Nath

BA Global Studies, 2nd semester 2026.

Dr. B.R. Ambedkar University

New Delhi, India.

Dear India,

On this sacred occasion of Republic Day,
I bow to you.

This letter is not from a mere citizen,
but from a son-born of your soil and
forever bound to your soul.

India, you are not just a country; you are an ascetic idea—

flowing uninterrupted from the heights of the Himalayas to the depths of the seas.

Your heart is so vast that countless languages, cultures, and traditions breathe
together within it.

Your tolerance is your greatest strength,
and your diversity your most beautiful
ornament.

India, you have given the world
knowledge, meditation, mathematics, yoga, and the eternal humanist principle of "Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam"—the world as one family.

By becoming a republic, you proved that true power does not lie in the sword, but in the Constitution; that governance does not flow from thrones, but from the participation of every citizen.

Your past is glorious, your present vibrant, and your future divine. Your youth are your heartbeat, your farmers your backbone, your soldiers your pride, and your teachers your guiding light.

India, your greatest greatness lies in this—you embrace everyone, mastering the rare art of remaining united even in difference.

When the tricolour flutters in the sky today, it is not merely a piece of cloth that waves—

it is millions of dreams, countless hopes,
and unshakable faith.

Dear India, I am proud to be a citizen of your republic.

I am proud to be a bearer of your culture.

And I am proud to be a small participant in your radiant future.

May you always remain great, always resilient, always compassionate.

Jai India.

Jai the Constitution.

Jai Humanity.

Your proud citizen.

Yatharth

My Letter To INDIA

Dear India

I write to you not with ink alone but with pride, gratitude and hope. You are a feeling that lives in my heart. From Kashmir to Kanyakumari we see diversity like no other land. Your languages, cultures, festivals and traditions may be different but they all come together to form one beautiful soul. You have taught the world that unity does not mean sameness. In the moments of crisis, your people stand together as we witnessed many times in Corona, Pulwama attack etc. There is no other place on the earth that reflects the philosophy of "Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam" (The world is one family).

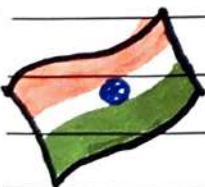

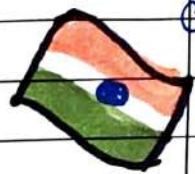

I know you went through many phases till now. Your past is marked with sacrifices. Colonial Era was the most traumatic era of your life but you also saw the strength of people that come together to fight for you. I bow my head to the freedom fighters - Mahatma Gandhi, Bhagat Singh, Subhash Chandra Bose, Sardar Patel and thousands of unsung heroes who sacrificed their lives so that we could hold our heads high. After that when you gained independence in 1947 there were lots of challenges in your life like Partition, Poverty, Lack of education, poor medical facilities, and underdeveloped economy etc. But you remained steadfast in all circumstances. You stumble, you rise and you move forward with resilience. Despite all these challenges, your soul remains broken, guided by ancient wisdom and youthful ambition. Dr. B. R. Ambedkar once said "freedom of mind is the real freedom" and you continue to chase this through education and equality.

Topic _____

Date _____

I take this moment to bow down to your glorious past. You are the cradle of our one of the oldest civilisation, a land that has given the world great knowledge in science, mathematics, yoga and philosophy.

I want to tell you that your true strength lies in your people always. It lives in the farmer who trusts the soil, in the soldier who stands fearless at the borders, in the workers who build dreams brick by brick. It shines in your eyes of children who dare to dream beyond limitations and in women who rise with courage despite all the barriers and challenges. Dr. A. P. J. Abdul Kalam believed that a nation becomes strong when its people dream and act together. Your strength was visible when you chose peace over revenge, truth over fear and hope over despair. Mahatma Gandhi showed the world even non violence can be powerful.

As a child, I draw courage from you, when I feel weak, I remember your journey. When I feel unsure, I remember your resilience. I make a promise to protect your values, to respect your diversity and to contribute with honesty and compassion. I may be small but my love for you is vast. You are my past, present and my future.

Jai Hind

Mande Mataram

Yours sincerely

A grateful child of India

एक पत्र भारत के नाम

प्रिय भारत,

आपका पत्र लिखते हुए मेरे मन में आज कई भाव एक साथ उमड़ रहे हैं जैसे गर्व की अनुभूति तथा संवेदना और जिम्मेदारी का सहसास। आज तुम केवल एक राष्ट्र नहीं बल्कि हजारों वर्षों की सभ्यता, संस्कृति, ज्ञान और संघर्ष की जीवित गाम्मा है। तुम्हारी मिट्टी में वेदों की वाणी है, बुद्ध की करुणा का संदेश है, अशोक की धम्म नीति की विचारधारा है, सनातन एवं प्रकृति की संस्कृति है और स्वतंत्रता सेनानियों का बलिदान है। आज तुम्हारी सबसे बड़ी विशेषता तुम्हारी विविधता में एकता की नीति है, यह सिर्फ एक नारा नहीं, बल्कि तुम्हारी आत्मा है। विभिन्न भाषाएँ, विभिन्न धर्म, विभिन्न जातियाँ, विभिन्न परंपराएँ, विभिन्न शैली — फिर भी एक राष्ट्र। आज देश का संविधान इस न्याय, स्वतंत्रता, समानता और बंधुत्व के रूप में कई राह देता है। यह संविधान केवल एक कानूनी दस्तावेज नहीं, बल्कि करोड़ों सपनों का सामाजिक अनुबंध है।

किंतु, प्रिय भारत, आज तुम्हारे सामने आज के समय अनुसार अनेक चुनौतियाँ भी खड़ी हैं जैसे बेरोजगारी, सामाजिक असमानता, राजनीतिक ध्रुवीकरण, पर्यावरण संकट — यह सब हमें आत्ममंथन के लिए बाध्य करता है। कभी कभी ऐसा प्रतीत होता है कि विकास की दौड़ में संवेदनारं पीछे छूट रही है। आज लोकतंत्र केवल वोट एवं चुनावों तक सीमित न रह जाय, बल्कि संवाद, सहिष्णुता और उत्तरदायित्व में भी दिखाई दे — यह सुनिश्चित करना हम सबकी जिम्मेदारी है। परंतु बतानी चुनौतियाँ होने के बावजूद, मुझे तुम पर पूर्ण विश्वास है क्योंकि तुम्हारे पास दुनिया की सबसे बड़ी युवा शक्ति है। यह युवा वर्ग केवल संख्या नहीं, बल्कि आने वाले विकसित भारत के सपनों का प्रकाश एवं उज्ज्वल भविष्य की दृष्टि है। शिक्षा, नवाचार, विज्ञान, तकनीक और सामाजिक जागरूकता के माध्यम से हम एक ऐसे भारत का निर्माण कर सकते हैं जो केवल आर्थिक रूप से ही नहीं, बल्कि नैतिक और मूल्यों में भी विश्व का नेतृत्व करे।

आज के समय में दुनिया के विभिन्न देशों में अलग अलग संकट चल रहे हैं फिर चाहे वो यूक्रेन हो, पाकिस्तान हो, बांग्लादेश हो, वनेजुला हो या अमेरिका जैसा बड़ा देश हो क्यों न हो। कुछ बड़े देश दुनिया के व्यापार को आस्थिर करने का भरपूर प्रयास कर रहे हैं ताकि तुम्हारी रफ्तार पर एक ब्रेक लग जाय और तुम हमेशा की तरह इन बड़े देशों पर निर्भर रही लेकिन अब तुम्हें इन सब चुनौतियों को पीछे छोड़ते हुए, अपने संकल्प और सपनों पर केन्द्रित रहना है और स्वयं आत्मनिर्भर बन कर मेहनत इतनी खामोशी से करनी है कि तुम्हारी कामगारों की गुंज दुनिया के इन विकसित देशों की जमीन टिला दे क्योंकि हम सब जानते हैं कि भारत, तुम्हारी कहानी बहुत लंबी है। तुमने साम्राज्य देखे हैं, गुलामी देखी है, विभाजन का दर्द मचा है और फिर भी खुद को संभाला है। तुम्हारी आजादी किसी एक दिन की घटना नहीं थी, बल्कि लाखों लोगों के संघर्ष, बलिदान और विश्वास का परिणाम थी। आज जब भी तिरंगा लहराता है, तो उसमें सिर्फ रंग नहीं दिखते — उसमें इतिहास, त्याग और उम्मीद दिखती है। भारत, तुमने मुझे पहचान दी है — मेरी भाषा, मेरी शिक्षा, मेरे अधिकार। एक नागरिक के रूप में यह मेरी भी जिम्मेदारी है कि मैं सिर्फ शिकायत न करूँ, बल्कि अपना भी योगदान दूँ। मैं यह वादा नहीं कर सकती कि मैं सब कुछ बदल दूँगी, लेकिन इतना जरूर कह सकती हूँ कि अपने हिस्से की जिम्मेदारी निभाऊँगी। ईमानदारी से काम करूँगी, दूसरों के अधिकारों का सम्मान और गलत को गलत कहने का साहस अवश्य रखूँगी।

अंत में ईश्वर से मेरी प्रार्थना है कि तुम्हारा अतीत गौरवशाली है, वर्तमान भातेवाली है और भविष्य उज्ज्वल भातेवाली और अवसरों से भरा हो।

तुम्हारी नागरिक
कृति प्रजापति

A Letter to India

Dear Bharat,

I write to you as both inheritance and hope. You are older than memory, yet young in ambition. You carry centuries in your soul, and tomorrow in your eyes. And it is being written to you by a young citizen — still learning, still questioning, still believing.

You hold millions of stories in your people, and countless lessons in your past.

You are Bharat — shaped by sacrifice, resilience and wisdom. You are also India — aspiring, restless and constantly evolving. Somewhere between tradition and transformation lies your true strength. And somewhere within that strength, lies our responsibility.

My generation speaks often of change. We debate, post, protest, and demand accountability. Yet, we are also discovering how difficult real change is. We question leadership but hesitate when responsibility turns inward.

Perhaps, the Bharat we dream of can't exist unless we are willing to accept and be better citizens. Your identity is not shaped only by policies or institutions — it is shaped by our choices, our empathy, our courage and our honesty.

I see your strength in ordinary people — students who question injustice, workers who build cities brick by brick and citizens. I also see your vulnerability in how quickly disagreement turns to anger, and silence replaces dialogue. Democracy does not weaken when questioned, it weakens when people stop caring.

You are developing fast. Roads stretch longer, skylines rise higher and aspirations grow louder.

But I often wonder — are empathy and understanding growing at the same pace?

A truly Viksit Bharat cannot be built on infrastructure alone. It must rest on — dignity, inclusion and trust.

Progress is not just measured in numbers, but in how safely a woman walks home, how freely a child dreams, and how fairly a citizen is heard.

Bharat, I do not wish to inherit you as a finished story. I want to help write your next chapter — where differences don't divide us, where growth does not come at the cost of compassion and where young voices are trusted.

We are listening. We are learning.
And we are ready to walk with you.

Yours Sincerely,

A Young Indian.

Date: _____

Page: _____

Topic: _____

Happy Republic day
My dear Mother India,

I am your daughter. You are a beautiful country with Delhi as capital and a long history of so many centuries.

You are an intelligent country rich in technology and culture.

I can see so many geographies (mountains, rivers, ocean and forests), so many histories, so many festivals. You have so many friends because of your nice nature. The whole world loves you.

I hear so many languages, so many sounds of music, so many stories of your greatness. I speak from my heart: let this diversity remain. Our brave ~~proby~~ army protects you.

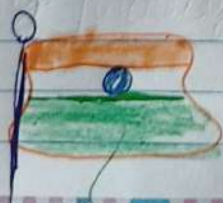

I salute mother, I am proud of you.

आजो हम सब साथ मिलोंए
दिल से दिल तक रहे बनाएँ

जय हिंद ।

From your proud
daughter Prapti