Admissions 2025-2026

School of Public Policy and Governance (SPPG)

School of Public Policy and Governance offers three interdisciplinary, diverse and intersecting programmes in 'public health' and 'public policy and governance' that support, encourage and redefine liberal arts education through a number of interdisciplinary courses, field practicum and participatory pedagogy. The School and its programmes are founded on the premises that academic engagement, policy and practice should inform each other.

PhD Programme in Public Health

The School of Public Policy and Governance offers admission on an annual basis to a PhD

Programme in Public Health which underscores a reflective engagement with public health theory and practice and the development of research competency. Research scholars shall acquire or improve skills for effective review of and engagement with scholarship in their chosen areas of research. They are enabled to discover and apply methodologies necessary to carry out original research aimed at an interdisciplinary engagement with public health issues. Research scholars will actively contribute to the intellectual life of the University through regular communication about their research work with faculty and fellow students. The key output of Public Health research scholars' would be a thesis.
