

School of Education Studies
AUD, Lodhi Road Campus

invites you to a talk on

Early learning interventions with children from low literate and diverse social backgrounds - Experiences, reflections and questions

By

Keerti Jayaram

(Organisation for Early Literacy Promotion)

On

Wednesday, 21 March 2018

02:00 pm – 4.00 pm

Venue: Seminar Hall

Ambedkar University Delhi, Lodhi Road Campus

Abstract: The Organisation for Early Literacy Promotion or OELP began as an exploratory search in 2006. Our idea was to engage with children within and outside classrooms to understand some natural ways in which children learn. We wanted to explore ways in which these can be facilitated inside classrooms so that all children can learn with fullness and actualize their potentials. Our programmes and innovations aim to go beyond the concerns of access and outcomes to concerns which lay emphasis on what educational experiences mean for each child's identity, self worth and learning. OELP views itself as a search for meaningful and innovative and doable classroom practice which can enhance the quality of learning for each child during the early foundation building years of early childhood. Our programmes and innovations are evolving organically through our sustained and intensive engagement with learners and learning contexts as well as through engagement with insights from research based literature. This journey in which we have been involved over the past ten years still continues.